Scenic World choc full of family fun this Easter

Baby bunnies, fresh hot cross buns and world-famous rides: Scenic World Blue Mountains will be choc full of awesome holiday entertainment this Easter.

During the Easter long weekend, the Scenic World forecourt at Katoomba will be transformed into a festive farmyard where children can feed and pat piglets, chicks, calves, kids (the baby goat kind) and bunny rabbits, of course.

While the little humans get to know the animals, adults can relax with a spiced hot chocolate and a fresh hot cross bun from the pop-up cafe.

Roving musicians the Hot Potato Band will entertain with their popular New Orleans-inspired tunes.

Scenic World brother and sister Joint Managing Directors Anthea and David Hammon said: "Already family-friendly with rides suitable for all ages and fitness levels, our activities celebrating Easter make a visit to Scenic World an even greater opportunity for families to spend quality time together."

The fun continues after Easter with the hugely popular Sculpture for Small People. Workshops led by exhibiting artists of this year's Sculpture at Scenic World exhibition, from 15 April until 10 May 2015. The program will include an all day family drop in Mini Miner's Hut workshop' on April 19.

Families are encouraged to come along and create a colourful, three dimensional cardboard cubby to take home based on the wonderful attraction of the historic Miner's Hut on the Scenic Walkway.

After enjoying the crisp Blue Mountain air on the rides, warm up with a mouth watering autumn pot pie at EATS270, baked fresh on site.

All Easter weekend events are free with the purchase of a Scenic World pass. So rug up and arrive early to make the most of your Blue Mountains Easter adventure.
